FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

Howard Hughes Medical Institute (HHMI) – Training Fellowships for Medical Students Program (Medical Fellows Program) – enables medical, dental, and veterinary students to spend a year conducting basic, translational, or applied biomedical research at any school or nonprofit research institution in the United States. For the 2010-2011 Program year, Fellows will receive a stipend of $27,000, a fellow's allowance of $5,500 that may be used for health care and other expenses and a $5,500 research allowance. The application deadline is January 11, 2010. This year, HHMI is pleased to continue two joint initiatives, which will support additional Medical Fellows: 1) with the Ivy Foundation for student researchers in the neurosciences, particularly neuro-oncology, and 2) with the Burroughs Wellcome Fund (BWF) for veterinary students. Students applying for the HHMI-Ivy and HHMI_BWF fellowships will utilize the same application process as the other HHMI applicants, and will be identified by HHMI for these awards.

The HHMI-NIH Research Scholars Program (Cloister Program) – enables medical, dental, and veterinary students to spend a year conducting basic, translational or applied biomedical research in one of the many laboratories on the NIH campus in Bethesda, Maryland. Novel aspects of this program include housing for all Scholars together on the NIH campus, and student selection of preceptor and research project after arrival in Bethesda. For the 2010-2011 program years, Scholars will receive annual compensation of $27,000, health insurance and numerous other benefits. The application deadline is January 10, 2010.

Students may apply to both the Research Scholars Program and the Research Training Fellowships in the same year. Also, both programs are open to students in all years of study prior to graduation
